

April 8, 2014

To Whom It May Concern:

Jessie Barrett is the best agent you could have on your side when selling or purchasing a home.

My husband and I met Jessie many years ago at an open house that she was hosting. She had taken our name and phone number and a description of what we thought we would want to purchase. Well, as time went by (3 years), Jessie continued to stay in contact with us. She would continue letting us know what was on the market and was always willing to take us to view properties that interested us. Our "description" of what we wanted to purchase changed during this period many times, but Jessie kept a bright and professional attitude, with a great sense of humor. Jessie never pushed for us to make quick decisions. She was very patient and always professional. Since then, Jessie had helped me and my husband sell and purchase homes throughout the years. She was always the "go to" agent when we needed help.

After my husband passed away, I decided once again to enlist my good friend, Jessie, to help me sell my home. She was there giving me her most professional advice and tempering some of the downsides of the market with her great humor. She allowed me to set the pace during the selling process offering advice and ideas; she knew I was in no hurry and wanted the best price possible for my home....AND, with Jessie's help, I got it.

THEN I had to buy another home. Jessie, AGAIN, allowed me the time to process what I actually wanted in a home. She was always available to show me homes and worked through each showing with her great professionalism and her "know how" of the real estate business. I decided on the home I purchased for a couple of reason. First, Jessie's persistence in showing me all the homes that were available allowed me to see the pros and cons in each home and decide if it was the one for me. Secondly, her instinct in knowing what I would like; she got this from asking and asking and asking all kinds of questions whenever we looked at each home. Jessie helped me find a "treasure of a home". I am so very happy with my choice!

If you want a warm and caring agent with a lot of real estate knowledge and professionalism, Jessie is the person for you!! In all my professional dealings with Jessie, my greatest joy has been the friendship we share!

Thanks,

Debbie Wilson